

InclusionAF

STAND YOUR GROUND

A THOUGHT-PROVOKING SESSION ON ANTI-ASIAN MICROAGGRESSIONS

Asian professionals often face microaggressions yet feel they're unable to respond to them in the moment. Why?

Because they have never been able to practice their responses and/or process the microaggressions they face.

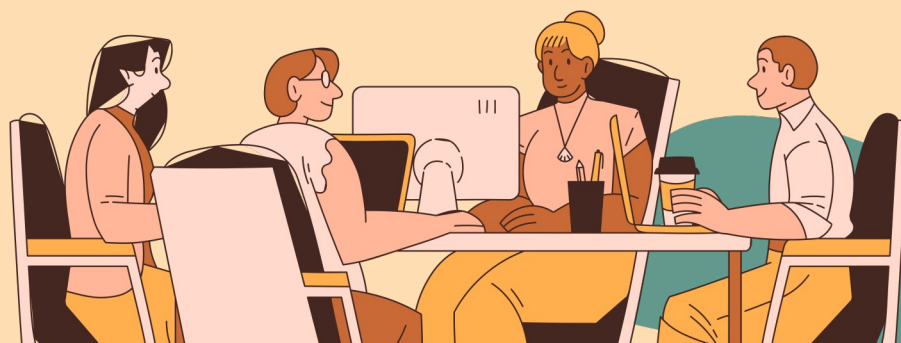

Until now.

In this 90-minute session, we introduce

- the Spectrum of Anti-Asian Statements and Actions
- the eight types of anti-Asian microaggressions, and
- the six ways to respond.

Most importantly, we create space for people to process these microaggressions and practice their responses. Pricing begins at $5,000 for a 60-minute virtual session and includes two 30-minute prep sessions, with additional costs for the 90-minute virtual session version and/or in-person delivery.

For more information, please contact Aaron Fung at af@inclusionaf.com.

SAMPLE CLIENTS

"[Aaron] was top notch! Engaging, strong presentation and delivery. I really liked the framework around "intent and impact", as this is an excellent way to discuss and help others understand microaggressions..."

-Blake Coyle, Director, Global Product Solutions, Google

SPEAKER BIO

Aaron Fung is the Head of DEI and Culture for the Americas region at a medical device manufacturer and runs InclusionAF, a DEI consulting company dedicated to helping people gain perspectives.

Aaron's expertise sits at the intersection of cross-cultural competence, organizational development, and DEI change management. His twenty years of experience come from a variety of companies (Pinterest, LinkedIn, Deloitte, and Merrill Lynch) and industries (technology, financial services, nonprofit organizations). He holds an MBA from Vanderbilt University (where he majored in Human and Organizational Performance and was an Ingram Scholar).

In addition, he is an ICF-certified coach, a world traveler (with 42 countries visited), and a father to two wonderful kids, Cooper and Clementine. He resides in North Bergen, NJ.

